

Marigny

What would it look like if the warmth of handwriting, the confidence of lettering and the functionality of typography were combined into a robust family of fonts? It would look like this.

Presenting Marigny.

MARIGNY is a casual typeface that was drawn with serious typography in mind. It has the same basic proportions as classical ‘oldstyle’ typefaces (think of Garamond & friends) and these give it a similar typographic rhythm to one that we have known for several hundred years. The hand-rendered forms transform this familiar texture into something very warm and pleasant. In a way, dipping into a block of text set in Marigny is like putting on your favorite pair of comfortable slippers.

I INITIALLY DESIGNED MARIGNY FOR USE IN PARAGRAPH

LENGTH RUNS OF TEXT, but all of the weights, especially the Thin & Black, look just as great when used in large sizes. The informal forms that make blocks of text so appealing also give a handmade quality when typesetting headlines and logotypes.

Marigny has a large set of the useful TYPOGRAPHIC SORTS loved by considerate designers: ligatures, small caps, swashes, multiple figure styles & a handful of ornaments. Finally, as with all of my typefaces, this family works just as well on screen as it does on paper.

I have used Marigny for several personal projects over the last few years and it has always been a lot of fun to use. I really like this typeface and I hope you consider it for any text that you want to feel warm, welcoming and alive.

What would it look like if the warmth of handwriting, the confidence of lettering and the functionality of typography were combined into a robust family of fonts?

TYPE SUPPLY
Tal Leming / 2014

HELLO, I'M TAL LEMING. Type Supply is me. Well, technically it's the Limited Liability Corporation that I work for.

Anyway, I design fonts and lettering. It's fun. I can design something for you, too.

I've had a fascination with the shapes of letters since I was a student in the Louisiana State University School of Art Graphic Design Program. (Class of '97. Geaux Tigers.) I made my first font when I was a freshman there. It was terrible. After graduation I spent the first part of my career as a graphic designer focusing on corporate identity, point of sale, etc. All along I kept drawing letters and eventually I tricked the folks at House Industries into giving me a job. I designed printed ephemera there for several years and then I started Type Supply.

My primary focus now is the design of typefaces for myself and others. You may have seen some of these, especially if you've watched sports, read about sports, visited a toy store, visited a children's book store, bought groceries or been exposed to popular culture in general. I also occasionally dabble in lettering for publications, brands and so on. It's a lot of fun and I'm lucky to be able to work with so many interesting, smart, awesome clients and colleagues.

Over the years I've done a lot of type technology work. I co-authored the Web Open Font Format (WOFF) specification and was part of the working group that moved it through the W3C's recommendation process. I've written OpenType feature code for my friends at House Industries, Commercial Type and Typotheque that has made fonts do things that they had never done before. I'm co-author of the Unified Font Object (UFO) specification and my colleagues appointed me 'Benevolent Dictator for Life of the UFO.' (I'm still more than a little overwhelmed by that.) I'm the developer of several type design tools and I've written a lot of code that helps many type designers with their day-to-day work. All that said, I'm trying to spend most of my time drawing these days. I like writing code just fine, but nothing beats drawing letters.

DETAILS

Features & licensing

New Orleans* has developed a distinctive local dialect of AMERICAN ENGLISH over the years that is neither CAJUN nor the stereotypical Southern accent, so often misportrayed by film and television actors. It does, like earlier Southern Englishes, feature frequent deletion of the post-vocalic 'r'. This dialect is quite similar to New York City area accents such as 'Brooklynese', to people unfamiliar with either. There are many theories regarding how it came to be, but it likely resulted from New Orleans' geographic isolation by water and the fact that the city was a major immigration port throughout the 19th century.

ONE OF THE STRONGEST VARIETIES of the New Orleans accent is sometimes identified as the Yat Dialect, from the greeting ‘Where y’at?’ This distinctive accent is dying out generation by generation in the city itself, but remains very strong in the surrounding parishes. Less visibly, various ethnic groups throughout the area have retained their distinctive language traditions to this day. Although rare, languages still spoken are the Kreyol Lwiziyen by the Creoles; an archaic Louisiana-Canarian Spanish dialect spoken by the Isleño people and older members of the population; and Cajun.

New Orleans is world-famous for its food. The indigenous cuisine is distinctive and influential. From centuries of amalgamation of the local Creole, haute Creole, and New Orleans French cuisines, New Orleans food has developed. Local ingredients, French, Spanish, Italian, African, Native American, Cajun, Chinese, and a hint of Cuban traditions combine to produce a truly unique and easily recognizable Louisiana flavor. New Orleans is known for specialties like BEIGNETS (locally pronounced like 'ben-yays'), square-shaped fried pastries that could be called 'FRENCH DOUGHNUTS' (served with café au lait made with a blend of coffee and chicory rather than only coffee).

OTHER LOCAL CULINARY SPECIALTIES INCLUDE: Po'boy and Italian Muffuletta sandwiches; Gulf oysters on the half-shell, fried oysters, boiled crawfish, and other seafood; étouffée, jambalaya, gumbo, and other Creole dishes; and the Monday favorite of red beans and rice. (Jazz great Louis Armstrong often signed his letters, 'Red beans and ricely yours'.) Another New Orleans specialty is the praline local, a candy made with brown sugar, granulated sugar, cream, butter, and pecans. New Orleans also has notable street food including the Asian inspired beef Yaka mein.

The New Orleans area is home to numerous celebrations, the most popular of which is Carnival, often referred to as Mardi Gras. Carnival officially begins on the FEAST OF THE EPIPHANY, also known as the 'Twelfth Night'. Mardi Gras (French for 'Fat Tuesday'), the final & grandest day of festivities, is the last Tuesday before the season of Lent, which commences on Ash Wednesday. The largest of the city's many music festivals is the New Orleans Jazz & Heritage Festival. Commonly referred to simply as 'JAZZ FEST', it is one of the largest music festivals in the nation, featuring crowds of people from all over the world, coming to experience music, food, arts, and crafts.

NEW ORLEANS came into being to be a strategically located trading entrepot, and it remains, above all, a crucial transportation hub and distribution center for waterborne commerce. The Port of New Orleans is the 5th-largest port in the United States based on volume of cargo handled, second-largest in the state after the Port of South Louisiana, and 12th-largest in the U.S., based on value of cargo. The Port of S. Louisiana, also based in the New Orleans area, is the world's busiest in terms of bulk tonnage and, when combined with the Port of New Orleans, it forms the 4th-largest port system in VOLUME HANDLED. Many companies: shipbuilding, shipping, logistics, freight forwarding and commodity brokerage firms either call metropolitan New Orleans home or maintain a large local presence. The largest coffee-roasting plant in the world is located in New Orleans East.
