About

Galaxie was always planned to be a large family of families, all designed to work together. Cassiopeia is the second Galaxie typeface to be completed, after the publication of Polaris in 2004. An egyptian and a serif are also in the pipeline. Cassiopeia is a constellation in the Northern Hemisphere, one of Ptolemy's 48 listed constellations, and the home of two several notable deep sky objects. The constellation is named after a vain queen in Greek mythology.

Cassiopeia is available as two fonts: one a complex OpenType font using advanced feature programming for natural letter-to-letter joins; the other a basic non-joining font.

Mythological Roots

Cassiopeia, the wife of King Cepheus of the mythological Phoenician realm of Ethiopia, was beautiful but also arrogant and vain; these latter two characteristics led to her downfall. The boast of Cassiopeia was that both she and her daughter Andromeda were more beautiful than all the Nereids, the nymph-daughters of the sea god Nereus. This brought the wrath of Poseidon, ruling god of the sea, upon the kingdom of Ethiopia.

Accounts differ as to whether Poseidon decided to flood the whole country or direct the sea monster Cetus to destroy it. In either case, trying to save their kingdom, Cepheus and Cassiopeia consulted a wise oracle, who told them that the only way to appease the sea gods was to sacrifice their daughter. Accordingly, Andromeda was chained to a rock at the sea's edge and left there to helplessly await her fate at the hands of Cetus. But the hero Perseus arrived in time, saved Andromeda, and ultimately became her husband. Since Poseidon thought that Cassiopeia should not escape punishment, he placed her in the heavens in such a position that, as she circles the celestial pole, she is upside-down for half the time. Her name in Greek translates as: 'she whose words excel'.

Astronomy

Cassiopeia is a northern constellation which early Greek mythology considered to represent a vain queen who boasted about her unrivaled beauty. It is one of the 88 modern constellations, and was also one of the 48 listed by Ptolemy.

Cassiopeia contains two stars visible to the naked eye that rank among the most luminous in the galaxy. The star  $\eta$  Cas is a nearby binary star comprising a yellow Sun-like dwarf and an orange dwarf star. If we were to observe Earth's Sun from Alpha Centauri, it would appear to be in Cassiopeia as a yellow-white 0.5 magnitude star. The famous "W" of Cassiopeia would become a zig-zag pattern with the Sun at the leftmost end, closest to  $\epsilon$  Cas. Cassiopeia looks like a W or a crown.

End user license agreement

Version 1.0, July 2011

This is an agreement between you, the purchaser, and Constellation. In accepting the terms of this agreement, you acknowledge understanding and promise to comply with its terms. If you do not accept the terms, please do not complete the purchase transaction.

What you are purchasing from Constellation is the license to use digital typeface software — hereafter “fonts” — on a certain number of computers within your organization; you are not purchasing the copyright to the design of the fonts, but the rights to use the fonts.

The fonts are provided in CFF-flavored OpenType (OTF) format. Additional formats may be available upon demand, and may require the purchase of supplemental licensing.

When purchasing licensing for fonts, you may use the fonts on the maximum number of computers within your organization as specified in the license table. You can purchase additional licenses at any time, which grant you the rights to use the fonts on additional computers.

The fonts may not be used with any webfont replacement technologies without the purchase of supplemental licensing. Webfonts are provided in WOFF, EOT and SVG formats. Please see the license table.

The fonts may not be embedded in other documents, such as Portable Document Format (PDF), Flash files (including SWF), Word or PowerPoint without the purchase of supplemental licensing. Please see the license table.

You may make archival copies of the fonts for your own purposes. You may not distribute the fonts to people outside of your organization. A copy of the fonts may be sent as part of a file release to a prepress bureau, if absolutely necessary.

You may not modify, convert, adapt, decompile, or otherwise reverse engineer or create derivative works of the fonts.

We have done everything we can to produce our fonts to the highest and most up-to-date technical standards, and we test the fonts extensively in the latest versions of technically-compliant applications. If you do experience any difficulties with our fonts, we will work with you to resolve any technical issues in the fonts. If, after we have worked to resolve any technical issues, you are still not satisfied with our software, we will be pleased to refund your money, which shall be the limit of our liability in this transaction.

We grant the rights of use of our fonts to you in good faith, and request that you adhere to the terms of this agreement to the best of your ability, and in good faith.
